

STATE REPUBLICAN CLUB ELECTS LOCAL ATTORNEY TO EXECUTIVE BOARD

Attorney Albert W. Wunderly, of 9 Lincoln street, Arlington was highly honored by the Republican Club of Massachusetts when he was elected to the executive committee at the annual meeting of the organization in Tremont Temple, yesterday afternoon.

The Arlington attorney is very well known here and in Boston where he has his law office. He is chairman of the Republican Town committee here and past president of the Arlington Kiwanis Club.

The Massachusetts Republican club unanimously re-elected Judge Hannigan to a third one-year term at its meeting yesterday.

Chairman Carl A. Terry of the Republican State Committee, present as a member of the club, sat on the platform with Pres. Hannigan and made an address calling for the deepest spirit of co-operation between all groups in the Republican party, so that the prospective 1934 victory shall be the more overwhelming. Chairman Terry was given enthusiastic greeting at his presentation, and the audience showed its hearty approval of his remarks.

In his address Pres. Hannigan said in part:

"Need we seek a Governor in 1934 who has the qualities we require? We are richly endowed with a chief whose broad vision, keen intellect and sympathetic understanding have brought him to the Lieutenant Governorship. The fruits of the material blessings of business or professional life have not been tasteful to him. He has found ample recompense in unselfish public service. He has been fearless and skilled in the execution of his public duties. He is loyal to his party. He has no patience with subterfuge, but infinite patience in undertaking and solving public problems. Let us find happiness in the knowledge that he is our candidate for Governor in 1934. He, Gaspar G. Bacon, is entitled to our acknowledgment of his position as party leader.

"The new chairman of the State committee is entitled to (and so far as this club is concerned, will receive) the utmost cooperation in whatever he may undertake for party rehabilitation. His nature is gentle, and thus the unbending determination with which he holds a chosen course is concealed, but available for party enrichment. At least for a number of months in 1932, some say longer, there was a growing feeling that the management of the State committee must be entrusted to new hands if we were ever to realize success.

"The party's days of mounting debts and decreasing votes, of rumbling revolt and awkward fumbling are over. With Bacon and Lukin ready to give to the party all that he would have given had he been chosen chairman, there is neither bitterness nor anger; there is harmony and unity. Thus we move forward behind an admirable party head and an able executive chief."

Magician To Entertain Club

Plenty of fun is promised Arlington Kiwanians when they meet at Wyman's English tavern next Thursday noon. Mr. Stimpson, the Magician, is to be the entertainer and is expected to put a lot of things over on the boys.

The Magician has already served the schools and scout troops of Arlington on several occasions and should provide a half-hour of good fun and interesting magic. In addition to his Arlington engagement, he is also scheduled to put on a show for the Lexington board of trade in March.

Mr. Stimpson carries out the spirit of Kiwanis since he has been instrumental in adding several underprivileged families.

Dr. Franklin P. Hawkes, president of the club, will introduce the magician following the luncheon.

Local Resident Died Yesterday

Mrs. Marian Demoorjian, of 24 Marathon street, Arlington died at her home yesterday. She was the wife of Joseph Demoorjian and had been a resident of Arlington for nine years, coming here from Turkey where she was born and brought up. She was 62 years of age.

The building is being razed by the Mystic Building Wrecking company of Chelsea. It was located on the property owned by the railway company at Tufts street and Massachusetts avenue. The El's gain in taxes will be the town's loss.

WALKING IN WINTER

I love to walk on a winter's day
Through well worn, and yet
secluded streets—
Briskly, yet carefree, as in my way
I sing or hum, for my joy it completes.

With cheerful chuckles I break
my song,
Laugh outright or sometimes even sigh—
Exclaim and plan, as I swing
along,
So enjoying fresh air, earth, and sky.

Have you ever tried this great old sport?
Alone, and yet not alone, it seems,
Tonic it is, of a pleasant sort—
Ideal for reflection, but not dreams.

TOURISTS ATTRACTED TO THIS STATE THROUGH COMMISSION'S EFFORTS

In the series of articles which appeared in the Daily News last week, the work of the Massachusetts Industrial and Development Commission was outlined. It has been explained how manufacturing, industrial and recreational interests have been encouraged by the Commission. In today's article, the Commission's work which has resulted in attracting thousands of tourists and vacationists to Massachusetts is explained. The article follows:

It has already been pointed out that the recreation industry in Massachusetts represents an investment of approximately $200,000,000 in taxable property. It is essential that steps be taken to develop this industry in competition with other states which are aggressively promoting their recreational advantages. Local publicity ventures are excellent, but their scope is naturally restricted. The need for coordination was recognized by the General Court when it created the Massachusetts Industrial and Development Commission. One of the duties assigned to this Commission was to coordinate the activities of unofficial bodies organized for the promotion of the recreational interests in the Commonwealth.

This the Commission has done impartially and with great success. Aside from the comprehensive development measures undertaken by the Commission by means of general literature, cards, radio, publicity material, exhibits etc., in which the recreational advantages of the Commonwealth have been brought to the attention of the public as one of the factors favoring Massachusetts, there have been many steps taken which were designed specifically to attract tourists and vacationists to the unsurpassed resorts of this State.

Issued Directories
During the summer of 1931 and again in 1932 the Commission prepared and distributed thousands of copies of "A Directory of Stopping Places for Tourists and Vacationists." These directories went to every state in the Union and to many foreign countries. In every case these were sent only upon request, and thus there was no waste. These directories listed in the first section hotels, tourist homes and farm boarding places, and proved to be extremely popular. They were undoubtedly an important value in encouraging tourists to remain in this State for longer periods of time than they ordinarily would have. In other sections of the Directory were listed boys' and girls' summer camps, golf clubs, gun clubs, skeet clubs, rifle and pistol clubs and yacht clubs. An added feature of the 1932 edition was the inclusion of a number of suggested tours, such as to the beach resorts and historical shrines of the State, the Berkshire Hills and the Central Massachusetts countryside, and the educational institutions of the Commonwealth. Considered as a whole, this Directory was a comprehensive guide to the recreational facilities of Massachusetts in every convenient form and size.

During the 1932 season the New England Council advertised extensively the recreational advantages of this region. In every case in which those who inquired for further information showed any interest in Massachusetts, the New England Council forwarded the request to this Commission for further action. Specific requests for information were given special consideration, even when the matter entailed research and inquiry. Those who requested general vacation information were furnished with a carefully chosen selection of literature concerning the various sections of the Commonwealth. This literature was prepared and printed by local unofficial bodies and distributed by the Commission. In this way the Commission admirably fulfilled its duty of coordinating the activities of unofficial bodies, and in addition placed this literature in the hands of those who were really interested, where it would accomplish the greatest good.

The Commission was successful in inducing the New England Council to spend approximately $2,500 in advertising the "Directory of Stopping Places." Many telephone requests for this and other vacation literature were received during the time that the advertisements were run in the newspapers.

Advertising Helped
Stories and pictures were furnished to magazines, newspapers, and the publishers of school text books upon request. A large gasoline company submitted its proposed 1933 touring guide to this Commission for revision, which was done with the aid of the official historical data available to the Commission. Pictures showing the natural beauties of Massachusetts were furnished to the Saturday Evening Post for use as scenic illustrations. Every picture thus published means 3,000,000 free advertisements for the Commonwealth.

Many general publicity measures have been undertaken by this Commission to stimulate Massachusetts industry, agriculture and recreation impartially. Some of these have been accomplished with little or no expense to the taxpayers of the Commonwealth. These activities, which will be discussed in greater detail later on, include such things as the publication and distribution of booklets, the presentation of several series of radio programs, the display of car cards in the cars of two large New England railroads, the release to the newspapers of timely information pertinent to Massachusetts, the design and display of exhibits at the Brockton Fair, the Eastern States Exposition, the conferences of the New England Council and other such events, and the arrangements for disseminating information regarding the Commonwealth to organized groups by means of speakers and stereopticon lantern slides supplied by this Commission.

The most comprehensive single item of general publicity engaged in by the Commission was the publication and distribution of a descriptive folder entitled "Massachusetts—Its Industrial, Agricultural, Recreational and Economic Resources." This interesting and informative folder, which first appeared in 1930, contained concise information about the Commonwealth grouped under the headings of "industries," "agriculture," "education," "transportation," "public utilities," and "recreational—public lands." In addition there were included a large map of the Commonwealth, ten photographs to illustrate the importance of industry, agriculture and recreation to the economic welfare of this State, a section which presented "Quick Facts about Massachusetts" and three small maps to show the distribution of population in the Commonwealth, the existing and proposed public lands available for recreation and the location of our principal industrial cities.

1930 Big Year
This folder met with immediate popularity, particularly among Tercentenary visitors and Legionnaires who came to Boston for their annual convention. The original edition of 110,000 put out in June 1930, was soon exhausted, and the persistent demands for this convenient guide to Massachusetts made it necessary to order an additional 50,000 in October of the same year. The continued requests for this folder have nearly exhausted the second edition, so that in July 1932, it became necessary to revise this publication completely and order a third edition of 20,000.

Many letters of commendation have been received by the Commission regarding the content and arrangement of this folder. Its scope has been considered so comprehensive that it has been used as text material in the geography classes of the schools of this and other states. Requests for this folder have been received from every state and from many foreign countries. By means of the folder rack service subscribed to by this Commission this publicity material has been distributed on steamships destined for all parts of the world and in hotels and travel bureaus from coast to coast. Its value to the Commonwealth is beyond question. Since the expense involved was relatively small and the results secured were so great, there can be no question as to the value of this initial venture in State publicity.

DRIVER OF DEATH CAR TO SERVE SIX MONTHS' SENTENCE

His Death Probed

A recent photo of Ralph "Buddy" Conrad, Jr., 14, of Lynn, Mass., whose death at the Lynn Isolation Hospital is the subject of an investigation. It is charged that the boy died as the result of two whippings administered by a nurse at the institution. The death certificate states that Ralph died of Bright's disease with the whippings given as a secondary cause.

Amedee D. Lacasse of Manchester, N. H., Is Given Sentence In Superior Court—Was Operator of Automobile Which Struck and Killed George Seros in Arlington Centre—Final Chapter Written In Tragedy Which Occurred Last Thanksgiving—Youth Appealed and Later Changed Plea

The last chapter in the fatal automobile accident which took place in Arlington Centre last Thanksgiving night when a speedy roadster operated by Amedee D. Lacasse 24, of Manchester, N. H. struck and killed George Seros, 39, of 24 Moore place, was finally written yesterday when Judge Hayes sentenced Lacasse to six months in the House of Correction.

The sentence was imposed in the second session of the Superior Court. Lacasse will begin to serve sentence immediately. In all probability at the House of Correction in Billerica. The sentence was imposed on the charge of operating an automobile so as to endanger. Another charge, namely operating an automobile with defective brakes, to which Lacasse had also pleaded guilty, was placed on file.

The case has attracted considerable attention locally and has been before the public ever since the fatal accident because of the fact that it was continued on several occasions. Lacasse was arrested immediately after the accident and four charges in addition to that of manslaughter were placed against him. The four charges were: driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor; drunkenness; driving so as to endanger, and operating an automobile with defective brakes. Lacasse pleaded not guilty to all five charges and the case was continued.

After several continuances, he was finally found guilty only on the last two charges, namely operating an automobile with defective brakes and operating so as to endanger. Lacasse was fined $10 for operating with defective brakes and given a six months sentence to the House of Correction on the charge of operating so as to endanger. He appealed and the case was put over to the higher court. The matter came up last Thursday but was continued until yesterday when Lacasse changed his plea of not guilty and pleaded "guilty" to the two charges a week ago yesterday.

The accident happened at the corner of Broadway and Alton street when Lacasse, who was driving a roadster in which were three other young people, crashed into Seros and Anestros Laskin, also of 34 Moore place. Seros died of injuries received and Laskin was confined to the Symmes Arlington hospital with serious injuries. Both victims of the accident were well-known here, being engaged in a fruit business on Broadway.

Arlington — Sport — Lights

— By BOB FOREST —

The Arlington High hockey team came through with a moral upset when they held a strong Melrose team to only two goals. It was expected that Arlington would be defeated by a much larger score and many were surprised to hear the results.

They threw away numerous chances to score and might even have knotted the count if they had taken advantage of their opportunities. Melrose had very few shots at the goal but they made their few sallies count.

Gardella at center-ice was quite the thing for Arlington, showing a much improved poke check besides carrying the game into Melrose territory a great part of the game. Next year he will prove to be one of the fastest and most clever players in the league.

Rafe Serreto is the hero around the town for the week at least. It was he who scored the winning basket over Medford with only thirty-five seconds to play in the game. It was a brilliant push shot. But oh so lucky!

Chippie Gaw, former Arlington High pitching ace, football player and hockey man is now at New Hampshire State where he is playing hockey for the Freshman team. He scored one of the goals.

The basket-ball team plays Somerville tomorrow afternoon at Somerville. We don't think much of Arlington's chances of winning. In fact we might say that the team is in for a good trimming.

SOUTH MEDFORD IS CLOSING IN ON LEAGUE LEADING INDEPENDENTS

South Medford Trails Now By Just Five Points — Teachers On Heels of the Bruins—Jim Eremian Scores 354 and Joe Sharrillo Rolls Single of 133 —Bruins Take Four Points From North Medford —Twelve Men Better 300 Mark

The battle for the leadership in the City Bowling League became closer after the matches last week at the Hillside Alleys, but five points now separating the first five teams. South Medford, by virtue of its defeat of the Independents, moved up to within four points of the league leaders, but the former has a postponed game to roll and has a good chance to further improve its standing.

The Bruins upset North Medford for four points and are now only one point behind South Medford.

Teachers rolled two matches taking three points from the Elks and two points from the Tigers, and are now on the heels of the Bruins. O. K. collected four from the Elks, Hillside annexed three from the K. of C. and Civics beat the Firemen three points.

The high individual three string record was threatened by Jim Eremian who rolled 354, just three pins below Lindsay's record 357. Assistant City Solicitor Joe Sharrillo was in fine fettle as his single of 133 shows. South Medford gained the high team single and three string honors for the week, the former 540 and latter 1541. Twelve men bettered the 300 mark. Brady continues to lead the field in the individual standing with a mark of 105, followed by Lindsay 102, Kertzman 101, Gallivan 101, Maciver 101, Stillman 101, Hulme 100, Rubio 100 and Kulda 100. Change Sought In El Deficit Assessment

Proposals for changes in the changes in the method of allocating assessments against cities and towns to make up deficits in the operation of the Boston Elevated Railway were heard yesterday by the Legislative Committee, on Metropolitan Affairs. H. Ware Barnum, counsel for the trustees of the road, felt the best method would be based on a composite of assessed valuation and population of each city and town, similar to that used in allocating the expenses of the Metropolitan District.

The assessments should be based on population, in the opinion of Samuel Silverman, corporation counsel for the city of Boston. He declared the figures presented by the trustees for payment of the 1928 deficit were "difficult of comprehension."

At present the deficit is assessed against the cities and towns served by the road on a basis of the number of persons in the municipality using the elevated as determined by a traffic count from July 15 to 18 each year.

Britain Worries Over Ambitious Ladybirds

Spirit of Competition Aroused by Record-Breaking Feats of Amy Johnson Has Resulted In Near-Tragedies. Government Ban On Stunt Flying Hinted.

JOAN PAGE and AUDREY SALE-BARKER

Since Amy Johnson, Britain's ace woman flyer, performed her great two-way flight from England to Cape Town, South Africa and back, shattering previous records, including that of her husband, Captain James A. Mollison, her sister ladybirds of Fair Albion have shown a feverish inclination to duplicate her feat. At first this sentiment was hailed as a fine thing for aviation, but now British authorities are wishing that these do-or-die ladies would stay and do their flying at home, where the job of picking them up when they fall is an inexpensive matter. In one short period recently, three of Britain's foremost women fliers narrowly escaped death while seeking to "go one better than Miss Johnson." Miss Joan Page, daughter of the Chief Justice of Burma, and Miss Audrey Sale-Barker, were extricated from the jungle of Kenya, South Africa, after the plane in which they were attempting a flight to England from Cape Town, crashed in the wild country. Miss Page suffered a broken leg and Miss Sale-Barker, concussion. They are now in a hospital at Nairobi. While making an attempt to better Amy's record, Lady Bailey, wife of Sir Abe Bailey, diamond magnate, was forced down in the Niger Colony of French West Africa. When found after a search of four days, Lady Bailey had suffered torture from thirst, desert sand storms, tropical heat by day and intense cold by night. So now the popular clamor in Britain is for government restriction on such flights.

London, January 24.—Although Britain loudly applauded the great feat of Amy Johnson and was gratified at the enthusiasm it aroused in other ladybirds, desirous of emulating her, the general sentiment now is a devout wish that women fliers would do their flying at home, where picking them up when they fall would be an inexpensive matter.

For Britain has discovered that not all of its aviatrixes are Amy Johnsons. Ah, you recall, is the heroine of long-distance flights between England and Australia and England and South Africa. Her record flight from London to Cape Town won the applause of the world, speeded, as it was, by the fact that in setting a new mark for the trip, she shattered the record held by her husband, Captain James A. Mollison, solo trans-Atlantic flier.

But the spirit of competition that Miss Johnson's feat aroused in her ladybird colleagues almost had a tragic aftermath recently. Miss Joan Page, daughter of the Chief Justice of Burma, Sir Arthur Page, and Miss Audrey Sale-Barker crashed into the wild Kenya bush, near Lake Magadi, in darkest Africa, while attempting a flight from Cape Town to England. As both were injured when their plane crashed, it was by the merest chance that their lives were saved.

A wild bushman happened upon the wreckage of the craft and the injured women after they had been three days in the jungle. And a note, written in lipstick brought a rescue party from Nairobi, where the ladybirds are now in hospital. Miss Page suffered a fractured leg and Miss Sale-Barker, who struck her head when the plane crashed is recovering from concussion.

Simultaneously with the rescue of Miss Page and her co-flier, another British airwoman, Lady Bailey, wife of Sir Abe Bailey, South African mining millionaire, was posted as missing. Lady Bailey was attempting to beat the record set by Miss Johnson from England to Cape Town. Her attempt was not as reckless as may be supposed, for Lady Bailey had previously flown over the danger-

Burglars Get $150 From Safe In Somerville

Burglars who are believed to have gained entrance into the plant of the New England Bakery Co., at 86 Joy street, Somerville, by the use of false keys, forced open the safe in the office early yesterday and obtained almost $150 in cash. They carried out the robbery while Peter J. Dolan, watchman, was in another section of the building.

The safe was forced with sledge hammers and then the "can opener" method was used to pry open the door. Henry P. Sullivan, manager of the plant, said the thieves obtained something less than $150. Dolan discovered the robbery in making his regular rounds.

Sullivan declared that reports that $5000 had been taken from the safe were greatly exaggerated. There was no indication that the thieves had forced doors or windows, leading the police to the conviction the burglars made their entry and exit by the use of keys.

Mrs. Coolidge Sends Letter Of Thanks For Resolution

The Massachusetts House of Representatives received the following communication addressed to Speaker Leverett Saltonstall by Harry E. Ross, secretary to Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, on the action of the House on the death of Ex-President Coolidge:

"Mrs. Coolidge has asked me to convey to you and through you to the members of the House of Representatives her grateful appreciation of the resolutions adopted by your honorable body and also for the kind expression of sympathy."

thy plane. Thus were two tragedies avoided almost miraculously within a few days of each other and now the popular clamor in England is for governmental restriction over such flights.

However, the ill-luck that followed her sister fliers has not daunted the doughty Miss Johnson. Even while search parties were combing jungle and desert for the lost aviatrixes, Amy was busy planning a trans-Atlantic flight this Spring. Needless to say, her gallant husband is not in favor of wife braving the dangers of the Atlantic and it is reported that if he cannot persuade Amy to give up the idea, he may fly with her from England to the United States.

Boston Third City To View Famous Picture, "Cavalcade"

Fox Films pictorialization of Noel Coward's "Cavalcade", which opened sensationally in both New York and Hollywood will be the interesting attraction in the Majestic Theatre, Boston, beginning this Thursday night, January 26th. This will be the New England premiere, Boston being the third city in the world to view what New York and Hollywood critics declare to be the finest picture ever made in the English language.

Noel Coward, brilliant young English dramatist, wrote "Cavalcade" as a stage spectacle. Its run of over a solid year at the famous Drury Lane Theatre in London made British stage history. But it remained for Fox Films to capture the motion picture rights and to give to the whole world a picture which is sure to go down in cinema history as a milestone.

"Cavalcade" can best be described as a drama whose theme is the effect of world events on the home and family. It covers the period from 1800 to the present day, and the absorbing story is etched against a vivid background of historical happenings during that time.

Fox drew heavily on the original stage production. A staff of experts went from Hollywood to see the play in London, and to photograph it for reference. Many of the 40 principals were imported, some of them to play their original roles. The extras totaled 3500 in the big scenes. Frank Lloyd, twice winner of the Academy award, directed. The chief players include Diana Wynyard, Clive Brook, Ursula Jeans, Herbert Mundin, Una O'Connor, Irene Browne, Frank Lawton, John Warburton and Merle Tottenham.

From all reports coming from the coast, "Cavalcade" duplicated its tremendous New York hit, when it premiered last week at Grauman's Chinese Theatre. Hollywood turned out en masse, and practically every notable in the film colony crowded into the famous theatre. So important did Hollywood regard the event that fifty-seven stations in the Columbia nation-wide network carried the broadcast of the opening ceremonies.

Rival producers, stars and newspaper critics were as one in lauding "Cavalcade" and in heaping praise on Winfield Sheehan, the Fox coast head, Director Frank Lloyd and the members of the big cast.

Louis B. Mayer, the head of Metro, a rival company, paid a graceful tribute when he publicly called "Cavalcade" "the greatest picture produced." Louella Parsons, one of the best-known of the coast motion picture critics, said, "It is greater than 'The Birth of a Nation'."

Mary Pickford enthused so much over "Cavalcade" that she immediately sent Noel Coward a telegram. Coward, last week, was in Pittsburgh playing with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in his newest play, "Design for Living." Miss Pickford's telegram read as follows: "Dear Noel: 'Cavalcade' is by far the greatest motion picture ever made. I rejoice with you in your great triumph. Four of us saw it and wept until you couldn't see an eye in our heads. You have done a great thing for the motion picture industry."

"Cavalcade" will play a special road-show engagement during the run at the Majestic Theatre, and will not be seen at any other theatre in New England during its Majestic Theatre engagement. Performances will be given twice daily, at 2:30 and 3:30 p. m. and Sunday night. Every seat in the theatre is reserved and on sale at the box office two weeks in advance. Popular prices will prevail.

For all tobacco is sold in open auctions—where anyone can buy if he will pay the price. Even the machines on which different cigarettes are made are alike.

This much, however, is true: By using the right kinds of Turkish and Domestic tobaccos in just the right proportions . . . by blending and cross-blending them together in the most careful way . . . we make Chesterfield what smokers say it is . . . a cigarette that's milder, that tastes better. New York Savings Bank May Cut Interest Rate

NEW YORK—Savings banks in the Greater New York area, with deposits aggregating more than $2,000,000,000, probably will reduce their interest rate from 3 1/2 to 3 per cent, effective at the end of the current quarter, Mar. 31, Paul W. Albright, general secretary of the Savings Banks Association of the State of New York, announced.

Albright made it plain that no bank had taken definite action, but said it was "the consensus among savings banks" that the cut would be made, and added that the action, "if taken, is consistent with sound banking practice."

It would be in accord, furthermore, he said, "with the general lowering of return on money under current business conditions." In some parts of the country, he said, savings bank interest has dropped to 2 per cent.

BOWLING BREVITIES

South Medford has turned out some fine bowlers, but the team representing that section in the City Bowling League and composed entirely of Italian boys is well able to keep up the good name set by others. Holding down second place in the league standing for the greater part of the season, this team boasts several veterans of the game.

Led by Captain Joe Rubino, winner of last year's high individual average prize, rolled for many years in the Old Suburban and Boston Pin Leagues and is still going strong. Joe's average to date is 190 and he says he will better it before the end of the season. He is anchor man of the team.

Gerry Ferri, runner-up to Joe in the individual standing last year, also rolls for Fileno's in the Retail Store Association League. He has an average of about 98 and can always be depended upon to get them when they are needed.

Assistant City Solicitor Joe Sharrillo keeps in fine condition by his weekly visits to the alleys. Boats of a 99 average and "knows his bowling." Park Commissioner Bill Santomaso, whose lithe symmetrical figure is attributed to this form of sport, also is doing his stuff to keep the team up there. There are some that say that because of his size Bill ought to give to other boys a handicap of a few pins. Bill's average to date is 98.

Sam Sarno who also bowls for Queen Quality in the Roxbury Business Men's League is a plugger as his average of 96 shows. Sam gets them when they are needed the most.

The team is a well balanced team and it is going to take some top notch bowling team to keep them out of first place. Although the first five teams in the league are well bunched at present, the South Medford boys say that experience will count in the long run and the team that beats them out will know they have been in a contest.

LET'S WHOOP AGAIN

If the people of this town would show as much interest in building up the local community as they do in the election of candidates to office we would be in vastly better condition than we are today.

We would have more money floating in from the surrounding territory, more people would be employed, local business firms would be doing business, there would be fewer vacant buildings, local institutions would be in better condition, and money would be more plentiful in every home.

We get out and whoop our heads off for some candidate who doesn't even remember that we are in existence after the votes are counted. We spend our time and money urging everybody and his wife's Aunt Sally to vote for "our man." We consider it a duty to "aid the party" in every way. And we do it without expectation of any reward.

We are just exercising our rights as American citizens for the good of all of the people.

But why not expend at least a portion of that energy and brain power for the benefit of our town and our community and our own people? Why not work and talk just as zealously in an effort to encourage the business interests of this town? Why not take as much interest in our own personal incomes as we do in the salaries of the officials we elect to public office?

WHERE REPUTATION COUNTS

When it comes to fire apparatus for "town protection" the gallanage of a pump doesn't necessarily determine the quality of the finished product, nor does the horsepower of the motor necessarily determine its usefulness and dependability.

An "assembler" of fire apparatus, that is, a maker who buys a chassis here, a body there, and his equipment somewhere else and simply assembles it in his shop—might offer a pump or a motor equivalent in capacity to the products of pioneer manufacturers who build fire apparatus and nothing else. He might be able to sell his product at 20 or 25 per cent less money. But that doesn't mean that it is the best buy.

Almost anybody can make a thing a little cheaper—or a little worse. The few manufacturers who specialize in making fire apparatus only, go far beyond rated capacities. They choose every bolt, every part, with an eye to its influence on the finished job—will it wear as long as possible, will it maintain its efficiency over long years of arduous service, will it be immune to failure? These are the questions they ask themselves. Quality does the answering.

Then, after "town protection" has been sold, they put at the disposal of the purchaser the full facilities of reliable service departments—something the casual manufacturer cannot do.

When a town buys a fire engine it shouldn't buy merely engineering figures. It should buy dependability based on time tested reputation.

Fire Damages City Hall In Everett After Board Meets

Fire damaged Everett City Hall early this morning, following a meeting of the aldermen last night. The fire started in the basement and worked into the sealer of weights and measures office on the first floor, and the mayor's and city clerk's office on the second floor.

A pedestrian discovered the blaze shortly after two o'clock and sounded the alarm from Everett square.

Daddy Sunshine Club Rules

1. Be kind and helpful to others.
2. Look both ways when crossing streets.
3. Always be kind to dumb animals.
4. Write a letter to Daddy Sunshine, or have Mother or Dad write it for you, every now and then.
5. Try to bring a "Ray of Sunshine" into the lives of your parents and others every day of the week and every week of the year.

These rules are not very difficult for good girls and boys to keep. Most of them are kept by them anyway.

Mail your letters and stories to Daddy Sunshine, in care of this paper. He will answer them in the Daddy Sunshine Column.

Write on but one side of the paper, and place your age and address on the letter after your name. Give the day, month and year of your birth.

To join the club all you have to do is promise to keep the rules—and keep them.

HERE AND THERE

Little Marguerite Cronin of 53 Second street, Wellington, active Daddy Sunshine, has recovered from her recent illness. Marguerite's daddy was also laid up but is now well. Marguerite was in yesterday with her daddy and gave Daddy Sunshine some more articles for the needy children. The little girl is always thinking of spreading sunshine among the less fortunate children, and in this way is following out the principles of the club. There will be another letter from her shortly.

The condition of Ruth Nymann of Salem street, Medford, who was rushed to the Lawrence Memorial hospital last week to be operated on for appendicitis, is much better. She is on the road to recovery but will be laid up for more than a week to come. She is most thankful of the cards and letters sent to her at the hospital by various members of the club. If you have not written her yet, there is still time to send a cheerful letter.

Daddy Sunshine would be thankful to learn of any of his members that are sick so that the names may be inserted in the club column and give the members an opportunity to drop a cheerful line to the ill ones. So if you know of any sick members be sure and report them to Daddy Sunshine.

The Saturday matinee, popularly known as the Sunshine Matinee presented every Saturday at the Medford theatre, by "Mal" and talented members, starting at 1 o'clock, is making a big appeal to the members. The program is one of interest to all children and no objectionable pictures are shown.

SUNSHINE PRODUCERS

Once more Daddy Sunshine is publishing the names of many of the Medford children of the club who have donated Silver Paper, or tin foil, for the Crippled Children's Hospital of the Shrine at Springfield. The names of the recent donors of tin foil follow:

Master Marshall Adler, 55 Park street; Gail Cassidy, Fountain street; Jessie Gray, Forest street; Bobby and Parker Spofford, 116 Summer street; Isabel and Anna Doherty, 49 Ridgeway road; Beulah Odams, 14 Vine street; Eleanor Burnham for Mrs. Cornell's Gift shop; Dominic Buscemi, 30 Canal street; John Stivers, 4254 High street; James Cassidy, 30 Fountain street; Marie and Barbara Carmine, 91 Hume avenue; Jeanette Wilder, 92 Hume avenue; Eleanor and Mary Burnham, 78 South street; Margaret Stormist, 52 Fulton street; Myer Bokser, 192 Salem street; John Frey, 101 Frederick avenue; Gloria Eileen and Bobby Alfred Furbush, 185 Brookview road; George Serson, 97 North street; Bernice Corbett, Bradlee apartments; Lavia Franchini, 34 Governors avenue; Betty Hayden, 33 Manning street (who is to move to 12 Sharon street, Waltham next week); Mary Bruno, 115 Main street; Eleanor MacMillery, 14 Emerson street; Mabel Towne, 30 Emerson street; Ruth Boliver, 77 Ashcroft road; Helen Doyle, 77 Ashcroft road; June Zim, 10 Woodland avenue; and Barbara, Priscilla, DeMille and Phyllis Garey, 35 Park street.

Daddy Sunshine also wishes to thank the Arlington Firemen and the Medford Unemployment and Relief committee for the large quantities of silver paper they have donated.

The silver paper campaign of the club is always on—never has ended since it began about four years ago. Tons and tons have been sent to the hospital, and tons and tons more will be sent.

REGARDING TICKET WINNERS

In regards to the winners of tickets for answering puzzles in the column: The children must call for their tickets at least three days after their names appear in the columns, otherwise they will be given to one or more of the children who answered

In Uncle's Tax Trap

Listed as New York's "Public Enemy No. 1," Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Flepheimer, beer-runner and reputed racket king-pin, may soon be keeping Al Capone from being lonesome in the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta, if the ideas of Uncle Sam's agents work out according to plan. Dutch is sought by Federal authorities on charges of income-tax evasion, the same trap which resulted in Chicago's gang czar taking the "rest cure."

Auto Insurance Law Changes Urged

Legislation providing for stricter regulations regarding the execution of insurance certificates issued under the compulsory motor vehicle liability insurance law, was urged yesterday before the legislative committee on Insurance by Merton L. Brown, State commissioner of insurance. He urged that the present laws be amended so that insurance companies shall be bound by any certificates executed in its name by any of its officers or by a person licensed as its agent and authorized to solicit applications for, or issue or negotiate, motor vehicle liability policies.

Many Shocked At Death Of Angus McLean

Hundreds of people were greatly shocked and deeply saddened last night to learn of the death of Angus D. McLean at his home, 74 Adams street. Although it was generally known that Mr. McLean was a victim of the prevailing grippe, few realized that his illness was of a serious nature, because of which his death which occurred late yesterday afternoon came with stunning force.

Mr. McLean was a member of the West Medford Baptist church, one of the most useful and honored among its entire membership of nearly seven hundred. For several years he had occupied the responsible position of treasurer of the church, and for a long period had been a member of the Financial Administrative board of the church, in which capacity his clear vision and splendidly balanced judgment were utilized to most unusual advantage. He has been an official of the Lyman class since coming to West Medford. Few men were ever more quietly but deeply devoted to the service and advancement of the Christian church.

Mr. McLean was a Mason, a member of Sagamore lodge and Somerville chapter Royal Arcanum, and held membership in the Boston City club, the Boston Baptist Social union, of which he was an honored director. He was one of the leaders in the Medford Church Bowling league, and on the alleys there was no figure more familiar and respected.

Mr. McLean had a genius for friendship. In a quiet, unobtrusive manner he offered the finest qualities of his splendid personality, and found his way into the inner portals of others whose lives were deep and true. Often he was referred to as being a "one hundred percent man." In him confidences could be reposed without fear. Many men in business, social and economic matters came to him for an opinion which everyone realized would be fair and sane. His outlook on life was influenced by neither a discordant pessimism nor shallow optimism, he had a profound faith in the justice and righteousness of the creator, and in that faith he lived, served and was translated from this life into The Beyond.

The deceased is survived by his widow, Mabel Stockbridge McLean; an only daughter, Bernice Grace; four brothers, William S. of Winchester, Dr. John A. of Somerville; Albert P. of Egypt, Mass.; and Herbert C. of Wellesley Hills; two sisters, Miss Margaret of Somerville and Miss Jeannette of Quincy.

His friends in Medford, Somerville, in which place he formerly resided, and Boston in particular, and in many other places in general, are numerous. He who would have friends must prove himself to be friendly was abundantly demonstrated in the life of Mr. McLean.

Mr. McLean was born in Glasgow, Scotland, 57 years ago. He lived in Medford for the past 19 years. He was employed by the Kidder-Peabody company, now the Union Trust, for 20 years, up to the time of his death. One of his responsibilities was the payment of pensions to the widows of Boston firemen who lost their lives in the great Boston fire in the early seventies.

Hollywood Studio On Wheels To Be Inspected At Theatre On Saturday

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Traveling Motion Picture Studio on World Tour

Hollywood is coming to Medford! Although that may sound like a broad statement, it is, save for perhaps slight exaggeration, the truth, for on this Saturday the far famed Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Traveling Motion Picture Studio will pay Medford Theatre a brief visit.

This traveling studio, which was designed and constructed to special specifications at a cost of $150,000, is literally a miniature Hollywood on wheels; what with its elaborate motion picture sound equipment, its cameras, and its expert crew of camera men and sound men from the famous Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios in California.

Facilities for both the taking and the projection of talking motion pictures are included aboard the studio, and realizing that the general public would be greatly interested in having an opportunity to inspect this equipment, it is announced that during the studio's visit here this will be permitted.

The studio, which is hauled by a gigantic trackless locomotive, truly an amazing sight in itself, is regarded as one of the most remarkable and noteworthy achievements in engineering yet accomplished successfully by the resourceful mind of man. Every where the studio travels it is referred to as the "English Wonder of the World."

Painted a colorful red, and tastefully trimmed in gold, the studio measures over 90 feet long and 9 feet wide. Wherever it goes, it creates a terrific sensation, and since it began its tour of the country last September it has been visited and inspected by countless thousands everywhere.

Perhaps the feature of this traveling studio which has captured the most interest, if it is possible to designate one feature of this astounding phenomenon as being more outstanding than the others, is the ultra-modern projection booth, with its regulation Western Electric sound equipment, projection machines, and the six and one half by five and one half foot screen, one of the few rare projection screens in the country today.

The studio is designed so the public may pass through it to view the projection equipment at one end, and the sound studio for the recording of voice tests

Charlestown Navy Yard Rope Walk 66 To Remain Open

WASHINGTON — Representative McCormack of Massachusetts was assured yesterday by Admiral Brinsler, in charge of navy yards, that there was no foundation for reports current in Boston that the rope walk in the Boston navy yard was to be abolished.

The rope walk, a plant in which hawsers and similar naval rope is made, employs many civilians, and several telegrams had been received by the Boston Representative protesting against reported closing of the plant.

Chairman Shannon of the special committee investigating activities of the government in business, also told McCormack no action was contemplated against the rope walk.

CONVICTED OF WELFARE THEFT WOMAN LOSES CASE TO RECOVER HER $1000

Peter J. Zalchuk of Boston, accused of accessory before the fact of larceny of $1000 from Mrs. Nellie Swinuk of Wakefield in a game where it was alleged the woman had been induced to put $1000 in a box with money which others were to put in, the woman being given the box to hold, was acquitted following an hour's hearing at court before Judge Davis Saturday. After the government evidence had gone in, the court said it did not care to hear the defence, for the government had not established a case. The woman was in court a few days ago for stealing $265 from the town, which she received as Welfare aid having concealed the fact that she had this $1000 which she later said Zalchuk was involved in taking.

The evidence showed that the defendant and another man, whom the woman had known many years had talked about selling the woman's house and there were several calls made by other people, not the defendant. Finally the other people induced the woman to place $1000 in a tin box and they said they would put a like amount in, she as an evidence of good intention to sell and they as a surety of their honesty. They left the box with her and later she found that the box contained newspaper clippings. There was no evidence that the defendant had participated in the games any more than to have called at her home once on the matter with a friend of the woman.

Real Italian Dinner Wednesday At The Wedgewood

Due to many requests from patrons who enjoy a real Italian repast, the Wedgewood restaurant at 144 Forest street, in the Mercury building, Medford square will serve on every Wednesday, a genuine Italian Spaghetti dinner, which can be had from 11 a. m. until midnight. Meat and tomato sauce, made by an expert, will be served with the spaghetti, together with Italian bread, grated cheese and coffee. There are many in Medford, Arlington and nearby communities who will welcome this news, as it is difficult to secure a dish of spaghetti cooked and served in the true Italian style.

There is nothing more appetizing among the Italian dishes as spaghetti, served with grated cheese and tomato and meat sauce. To the uninitiated a real treat is ahead. The dinner price for this special, at anytime during the day on Wednesday, from 11 a. m. on, is thirty cents.

Sen. Walsh Stands Firm For Repeal

Senator David I. Walsh continues unswerving in his determination not to vote for any amendment repealing the Eighteenth Amendment, except a flat snub, as he said yesterday advocates of the unconditional repeal plank adopted in the platform of the Democratic National Convention in Chicago last June, the senior Massachusetts senator declares that, if flat repeal is not obtained in the present short session of Congress, it certainly will be won in the extra session after March 4.

Senator David I. Walsh continues unswerving in his determination not to vote for any amendment repealing the Eighteenth Amendment, except a flat snub, as he said yesterday advocates of the unconditional repeal plank adopted in the platform of the Democratic National Convention in Chicago last June, the senior Massachusetts senator declares that, if flat repeal is not obtained in the present short session of Congress, it certainly will be won in the extra session after March 4.

"I have never stated to any representative of the press that I would vote for any amendment repealing the Eighteenth Amendment, wrote a flat repeal," Walsh wrote to Mitchell. "That is the attitude which most of the Democratic senators have taken and continue to take. The job now before us is to get a flat repeal amendment adopted. If we do not get it through this present session of the Congress, we certainly will get it in the extra session to be held after March 4."

No Adequate Reason For Increase In Auto Fatalities

Nineteen persons—15 adults and four children—were killed in Massachusetts motor vehicle accidents during the week ending Jan. 20.

This is three more than in the previous week and 10 more than in the corresponding week one year ago. During that week a year ago no children were killed. Of those killed last week 10 were pedestrians and nine were occupants of automobiles.

Municipal Boston still leads the list with four killed, with Quincy a close second with three killed, and Cambridge third with two killed.

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Morgan T. Ryan said of the situation:

"This distressing unfavorable showing is accounted for in part, no doubt, by an extraordinary period of mild weather and open roads. But with approximately 50,000 fewer cars on our streets and highways this year than last, there seems to be no adequate explanation for a 100 percent increase in fatalities except that found in the failure of the human mind to act reasonably and sanely."

"In this week's accidents may be noted that six truck drivers—an unusual number—were involved and more or less responsible. One drove too fast on approaching a railroad crossing and collided with the engine of a train. One while backing without due care killed a pedestrian. Several other pedestrians were run down while walking along country roads. Two occupants of autos fell from running boards. Three were drowned."

"The proposal to widen the Fore River bridge in Quincy, where several fatal accidents have occurred, is very timely. But there is urgent need of something more than improvement in the physical conditions of such dangerous spots. Utterly inexcusable tragedies occur on or at the entrance to bridges that are 60 feet wide with two-way road construction. No bridge, however wide, can be made safe without common sense, discretion and good judgment on the part of the motorists. If even the shining lights of our better class of citizens cannot or will not drive at reasonable speed on a 60-foot wide two-way bridge, what hope is there that the frightful death toll by automobiles will ever be lessened?"

Sixty operators were convicted last week of driving while under the influence of liquor, 57 fewer than in the preceding week. Of these four were committed to jail, all from district courts. Five were convicted the second time within six years in district courts for operating while under the influence of liquor. Four were sentenced to jail and appealed and one paid a fine.

There were 318 licenses and registrations suspended or revoked, 168 fewer than in the week before and 130 fewer than in the corresponding period of last year. Of these 50 were for driving under the influence of liquor and 12 revocations resulted from insurance cancellations.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Sure that Dr. Steiner, leader of a narcotic ring, has murdered Mr. Arnold on the operating table, Hart, a government agent, examines the body and has it taken to the office of Dr. Steiner, chairman of a citizens' committee working with the government to capture a mysterious Mr. X, who is the head of the ring. Hart is in love with Arnold's daughter, and to protect her, he has hidden the girl in a hotel while securing evidence against Steiner. Dr. Steiner refuses to perform an autopsy on the body of a man without a court order. While they are discussing the matter, one of the men opens the cabinet and starts back in surprise. Hart and Steiner look into the cabinet and are amazed at what they see.

Now Go On With The Story

Hart reached his hand into the cabinet and pulled out a bag of narcotics. "We don't need an autopsy to find out what this is. Chief, the cemetery's full of it! We've got to go back and dig—dig all night! It's the biggest drug haul we've ever made!"

Hawkes went into action. He addressed two of the men who had been working on the coffin. "You fellows get that stuff right over to the office. The rest of you come with me. I'm sorry, doctor, that we broke in on you like this."

"That's all right, Captain Hawkes. With that left. The balance of the night was spent in digging in the cemetery where vast quantities of dope were unearthed."

The next morning, elated at the news, Hart returned to the hotel to tell Julie of the night's work. A maid, who was using the vacuum in the room, informed Hart that Julie had been taken ill and had been removed to the Eastland Hospital. Hart rushed to the telephone, but the line was busy. Realizing that every second counted, he hastily scribbled a message on a paper and handed it to the maid.

"Here—call this number as soon as you can. Ask for Captain Hawkes. Tell him that you are Doctor—"

"Steiner." "Steiner. X is the name. If my hands weren't tied up, I'd applaud. But your hands are tied." He moved over to the telephone. "Room C, please, Miss Edwards—You can

"I'm testing your heart action to see if it is advisable to give you an anesthetic. Some people can't stand ether. They die during the operation and I wouldn't want that to happen. Your heart shows a distinct flutter."

"You're a liar," said Hart viciously.

"I'm afraid I'd better not give you ether. I might try a local anesthetic—a little morphine, perhaps."

Hart became taunting. "I don't think you have much morphine left—not after what we did to that prop cemetery of yours last night. Steiner's eyes blazed with cruel light as Hart continued.

"How many people did you kill to get all that dope into the country? Those narcotics must be worth a pile of money."

"But it's going to be tougher to get it from now on, my friend."

"I'll remember that when I'm operating on you."

"And remember this. We got Henderson last night. He's being sweated over at the Federal Building now. When they get through with him, they'll know who you are."

"You can't tell what you don't know. Has it ever occurred to you, Mr. Hart, that you can commit almost any crime if you select the proper environment? For example, if I were to stick a knife into you in the street—it would attract attention. I might have to answer embarrassing questions. But when I stick a knife into you, here—on the operating table—nothing will happen to me."

"I wouldn't be so sure about that, Doctor—"

"Steiner." "Steiner. X is the name. If my hands weren't tied up, I'd applaud. But your hands are tied." He moved over to the telephone. "Room C, please, Miss Edwards—You can calling for Mr. Hart and that I'm on my way to the Eastland Hospital, and for him to get some men over here right away. Do you understand?"

"Yes, sir."

"Now hang onto that phone until you get the number." With that Hart left the room. The maid went to the telephone. She gave a number and waited. "Hello—Eastland Hospital? Let me have Room C please—Calling from Hotel Hart. Just left here. He's on his way to the hospital now—Yes, he's alone."

At the hospital Hart inquired: "Have you a patient here by the name of Miss Arnold?"

"I'll see." The nurse consulted the records. "Yes."

"May I see her please?"

"The name?"

The nurse phoned the request and then turned and informed Hart that he might go to Room C.

Julie was overjoyed to see him. In your condition, Miss Arnold, it is not advisable to excite yourself. Edwards, who was acting as nurse, cautioned. "She's a very sick girl."

Hart asked harshly. "Nervous breakdown."

As she spoke, two figures crept into the room. One held a chloroform sponge in his hand. Julie saw them steal up behind Hart. She was overcome with terror. Before he could make a move, the men had overpowered Hart, and rendered him unconscious with the chloroform.

When Hart recovered consciousness, he found himself strapped to the operating table. Steiner was leaning over him, preparing to operate.

"I'd advise you to untie my hands and let me down off the table."

"I know it is customary to get the consent of the patient for an operation, but this is an emergency and I was compelled to use my own judgment."

"I'll guarantee this," Hart declared. "No matter what happens to me, this butcher shop won't be here tomorrow."

"Neither will you. But I'm surprised, my friend, that you should question the regularity of this institution. It is a very private hospital and I always insist that everything is done in accordance with the requirements of the law."

Steiner picked up a blank. "Here is your admission card, which by the way was made out several days ago—you see, Mr. Hart, we were expecting you." Steiner laid down the card and picked up a stethoscope. He went through the usual scope of testing the heart action.
